

50 villages of Delhi will be urbanized soon

New Delhi: 50 villages in North Delhi municipal corporation area will soon be urbanized. A proposal in this regard has been approved by the permanent committee of the corporation.

The corporation has also given the DDA some ideas to develop land in these areas. These include amalgamation of different lands held by a single owner and the extension of 'lal dora'.

Seeing the need of expanding basic facilities according to the increasing population in the capital, Delhi Development Authority proposed to urbanize 89 villages in total. Out of these, 39 villages are in South Delhi while 50 are in Northern Delhi municipal area.

South Delhi has already sent its recommendations for urbanization of the villages of its area. Now, Northern Delhi has also proposed to urbanize its villages.

For Lal Dora's expansion, the corporation has recommended to prepare a special lay-out plan for these villages. This will also help in coping with the increasing demands of the growing population and enable low-cost houses in Delhi.

Mohan Bharwaj, President, of the permanent commission of the North Delhi Municipal Corporation told that there are various laws in villages related to land. Agricultural reports are also regularly sent to the government. There is no complete exemption in buying and selling of land as well. Hence if the villages will be urbanized then basic facilities like roads and sewage will be developed by DDA. This will also permit 'land-pooling' of different lands of a single holder.
